Journal of Women's Health Award for Outstanding Achievement in Women's Health Research

Nanette Santoro is a Professor and the E. Stewart Taylor Chair in the Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at The University of Colorado School of Medicine. Her major research is in the physiology of gonadotropin-releasing hormone secretion. She has been involved with numerous industry and government-supported clinical trials and currently holds a K24 grant.

Bernadine Healy Award for Visionary Leadership in Women's Health

Nancy Milliken is the Founding and Current Director of the UCSF National Center of Excellence in Women's Health and Associate Chair for Clinical Programs at UCSF's Department of Obstetrics, Gynecology and Reproductive Sciences. She has long sought to improve the health of women by increasing their knowledge and participation in decisions regarding their health. As a Robert Wood Johnson Fellow, she explored the ethical issues involved in reproductive decision-making and engaged in the national debate regarding "maternal-fetal conflict" and forced treatment of pregnant women.

Conference Learning Objectives

After completing this activity, the participant should be better able to:

- Implement the most current guidelines for screening a variety of disease states affecting women across their lifespan.
- Employ evidence-based approaches for the diagnosis of diseases impacting all aspects of women's health.
- Incorporate sex and gender in evidence-based management prevention strategies to address disease states impacting women's health.
- Utilize evidence-based treatment strategies to provide care for women's sexual health including care for women with a history of sexual assault.
- Provide care, counsel, and education to female patients to promote health management and disease prevention.
